A Perfect Evening

by James Giese

It was a perfect evening for Greenbelt's Independence Day Celebration at Albert S. "Buddy" Attick Park. The day was hot, as a summer day should be, with clear skies and little breeze to concern the Public Works Department fireworks crew responsible for firing the 220 skyrockets making up the city display.

Many celebrants gathered at the park early in the day to picnic, walk around the lake, play games and listen to the beat of the Caribbean group "Jambulay." Others arrived later, carrying chairs and blankets, gathering in front of the bandstand to hear the Greenbelt Concert Band give its traditional performance of patriotic airs mixed with a variety of other selections and ending with the stirring "Stars and Stripes Forever" followed by "America the Beautiful."

As the sky began to darken added throngs of people poured into the park from Crescent Road and the lake paths. The imaginative creations made by the Creative Kids Camp floating in front of the gathering crowd became illuminated by attached floodlights. As it became nearly dark some in the crowd showed their impatience by clapping.

Then around 9:15 a solitary skyrocket burst over the lake to announce the start of the city's display. This was followed by a ground display "Welcome to Greenbelt" and the staccato bursting of hundreds of skyrockets for a magnificent opening display. Nearly a half-hour later, following more ground displays and many exceptionally beautiful skyrockets, a rousing, spectacular finale brought an end to the show. The crowd cheered, gathered their belongings and felt their way through the dark to their homes or cars. Another great holiday to celebrate our nation's birthday had come to an end.

Booms and flashes, flowers and crackles delight the hundreds of viewers. Below, Mike Rousseau points out the "grand finale," cozy under its protective tarpaulin awaiting its moment.

Council Hears Register of Wills; Handles Other City Business

by Diane Oberg

At the June 30 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, Lynn Loughlin Skerpon, the Register of Wills for Prince George's County, described for council the services her office provides in handling citizens' affairs at the end of life. Despite the name, the register and her staff are state, not county, employees although the county provides their office space. Skerpon has been the register since August 2000.

Her office oversees the administration of estates of all county residents who owned property and assists citizens with the required paperwork for administrative probate. In addition, they accept wills for safekeeping for a $5 fee and serve as the official keeper of estate records for Prince George's County. In this latter capacity, her office has records predating statehood. These records are available for genealogical research. Although the staff cannot do the research, the office maintains computers for public access. Many records have been scanned into the computer system; some old records, however, are too fragile to be scanned and are only available on paper.

Skerpon stressed the need for everyone with property to have a will. She said that 70 percent of adult Americans do not have a valid will. In her experience as a probate attorney and as register, she said she has seen the problems that the lack of a will can cause. Skerpon offered community groups brochures and other materials on administering estates, on wills and estates and on advance directives. She said she frequently meets with community groups to discuss the services of her office and the importance of wills. She invited groups interested in having her address them to contact her office.

Street Resurfacing

Following Skerpon's presentation, council turned to specifically city business. Director of Public Works Kenneth Hall presented a video and brief discussion of the new Nova Chip process used to resurface five city streets this spring. These included Lakeside Drive, Lastner Lane, Ora Glen Drive and portions of Northway and Ridge Road. Hall said that the new process allowed the city to resurface each of these streets in a single day.

In addition, since the surface can be driven on immediately after rolling, the disruption to motorists is minimized. As a final benefit, this process, which does not require milling the street, allows the city to resurface 60 percent more street for

"Festival of the Song" to Make Center and New Deal Ring

by Eileen Peterson

The five-day "Festival of the Song" continues Friday, July 11 beginning at 8 p.m. in the New Deal Café. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the first group of song writers took turns performing and discussing their songs.

This third day of "song-sharing rounds" will feature Izolda (see concert review in last week's issue) and Dan Hart, whose electric-folk songs have received wide airplay and been featured on National Public Radio. Zoe Mulford of College Park has hosted the Songwriters Association of Washington here and Richard McMullin is the artist/organizer of this week's festival.

On Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. this "celebration of the art of songwriting will make Roosevelt Center come alive with songs, stories and poems expressing spiritual, witty and gritty musings about life," says McMullin.

Children's songs will be featured Saturday until noon in the Café. The outdoor concert will begin again at 1 p.m.

This event showcases over two dozen regional songwriters with diverse range of style. On Sunday the concert will run from 1 to 9 p.m.

From All Over

Instruments accompanying these regional musicians range from acoustic to electric guitars, fiddle, flute, harmonica and much more. There is also a cross-cultural flavor to the concerts.

Performers include Doug Alan Wilcox, Tom Forsey, Michelle Swan, Rick and Audrey, Adam Day, Joe Thompson and Alicia Deeny.

The list continues with Mike Elosh, Greg Marsh, Iris Hirsch and Joe Spatarella, Rob Hinkle, Brian Gundersdorf, Steve Keys and James Riordon.

The others are Mike Hamilton, Verlette Simon, Geoff King, Katie Graybeal, Heather Lloyd, Joylence Dalia and Chris Ehrich and maybe more.

Biographies and CDs of performers will be available. In case of hard rain the concert will move into the New Deal Café.

This third annual song writers festival is sponsored by the Friends of the New Deal Café Arts with additional funding from the Greenbelt Department of Recreation.

Letters

Labor of Love

Until recently I did not realize the long hours and dedication of the volunteers at the News Review and want to personally thank each and every one of you for providing us Greenbelters with such a great local newspaper.

I had recently submitted an article which needed clarification and was called one evening around 9:40 p.m. and again at approximately 10:25 p.m. I now know that many of the staff often work way past midnight till 2 or 3 a.m. or later to get the paper and news out accurately.

Thank you one and all. It is truly a labor of love.

Astronomy Club Has First Star Party

by Doug Love
Saturday night, July 5, was scheduled last October as the Greenbelt Astronomy Club’s first star party for July. The hope then was that it would be clear for at least one star party a month. Last year when there were clouds for every scheduled party from December through June all the star parties were cancelled. On July 5, several amateur astronomers were rewarded for their perseverance as the clouds parted to show the moon and Jupiter. Club member Steve arrived first with the club’s eight-inch telescope and visitor Robert from Northern Virginia brought out his binoculars. Kemp Brinson set up his spotter scope and found Jupiter first. We were then able to compare it in the three scopes, just as Martha Gay arrived to watch. I easily found the recently reported L on the moon in Mare Crisium and discussed the theological implications. Others invoked biblical blessings on those who brought bug spray. But after not finding Tau Bootis double, I decided to pack up and go home to mail out Astronomy Club subscriptions. Mars rises at 1 a.m. It is closer than it has been for 59,000 years, but I am hoping that the sandstorms don’t start before it reaches opposition just before Labor Day. The image of Mars at its closest should be larger than the view we got of Jupiter, now on the other side of the sun.

City Fails to Win Aging Services Grant

by Barbara Hopkins

State budget cutbacks are taking their toll on Greenbelt's services to its citizens. Due to a cut in funding for the Innovations in Aging Services Grant Program the Maryland Department of Aging was only able to fund a limited number of proposals. Greenbelt's proposal was not one of them.

The amount available for the grants was reduced from $142,000 to $60,000. According to Christal Batey, community resource advocate for the city, the grant would have been used to set up a multimedia outreach network to inform citizens of services available for seniors. Without the grant, Batey said, the program would need to be modified and be less extensive. She plans a series of articles in the News Review and is working to provide more information for seniors on the city's website. A planned call-in show on the Greenbelt cable channel would have been the most costly portion of the network to implement and has had to be scrapped. Batey said the needs assessment survey results would be considered in developing the future plans for the program.

Get an Early Jump On Algebra Basics

by David Stern

Are you a student baffled by algebra? Or due to take it next year and scared of it? Or maybe you dread not algebra but “trig?” Get on top of it this summer with zero frustration through a short math course on the web. Although it only covers the bare elements, it will get you well started – and you may find some interesting tidbits, for example, where the word “algebra” came from and how trig led to the identification of Mt. Everest.

The course is a supplement to a much larger course on astronomy, physics and spaceflight, titled “From Stargazers to Starships,” and its home page is <http://www.phy6.org/stargaze/Smath.htm>

It’s free and it contains 14 sections, including two of exercises (skip those and you lose most of the benefits). It was written here in Greenbelt (where I have lived 40+ years) and I would be interested to hear how useful it has been to you – also of any errors and suggestions you may have.

If you are tempted to dig into the rest of “Stargazers” be warned. You may get hooked!

The Recycling Bin

Dear Recycling Bin:

I’ve been hearing a lot about the benefits of grass-cycling but I am concerned about the grass clippings causing thatch.

Mrs. Mary Greenyard

Dear Mrs. Greenyard,

Grass clippings do not cause thatch when left on lawns. Thatch is a layer of organic material comprised of grass roots, not the grass blade that is mowed. Grass roots contain lignin, a substance that is very slow to decompose and causes thatch. Grass clippings, however, which are up to 90 percent water and contain little lignin, decompose quickly.

The EPA recommends leaving grass clippings on lawns to reduce the amount of waste that must be collected and managed and to enhance the natural health of lawns. As short grass clippings filter to the ground and naturally decompose, nutrients return to the soil and support further turf growth by supplying part of the lawn’s fertilizer needs. This practice can save about one fertilizer application per year.

Grass clippings increase the soil’s organic matter content, along with its ability to retain moisture and nutrients, to resist erosion, and to maintain cooler temperatures during the summer. To foster healthy standing grass, do not cut more than one third of the blade off, and no more than one inch total, at any one time. Switching to a mulching mower blade will reduce the size of your grass cuttings. For further information on Grass-Cycling, contact the Recycling Office at 301-474-8308.

Federal Funds Given for Bulletproof Vests

Senators Barbara Mikulski (D-MD) and Paul Sarbanes (D-MD) jointly announced the award of matching fund grants to purchase bullet-resistant vests. Law enforcement agencies in the Washington metro area will receive over $33,000 for the purchase of bulletproof vests. The grants are awarded by the U.S. Department of Justice's Bulletproof Vest Partnership Program. The City of Greenbelt will get $6,609, enough for 15 vests.

"We need to protect our protectors," said Mikulski. "We need to make sure our men and women in uniform have the best equipment and safety gear so they can do their jobs. I will continue to fight to make sure people on the front lines protecting our families and communities have the resources they need to keep us safe."

"There is a pressing need to ensure that our local communities have resources necessary to combat crime and ensure the safety of our citizens," said Sarbanes. "These federal funds will help to protect those who protect our communities."

The Bulletproof Vest Partnership Program awards grants to law enforcement agencies in all 50 states, but smaller jurisdictions receive priority. The grants require recipients to match at least 50 percent of the cost of each vest. Over 6,500 applications were received this year and over $149,000 has been awarded to jurisdictions throughout Maryland.

Mikulski serves on the Commerce, Justice, State and Judiciary Appropriations Subcommittee, which funds the Justice Department and this grant program. Sarbanes is a member of the Senate Budget Committee.

the same cost as traditional methods.

Councilmembers complimented Hall both on the cost savings and the appearance of the repaved streets, which is smoother and quieter than the company's normal surface because Hall chose to use a smaller gravel in the mix than the company normally uses.

USO

Kyle Dettinger, past commander of Greenbelt's American Legion Post, presented an $18,000 check to representatives of the USO. The money was raised at a May dance co-sponsored by the legion and the city government. John Hanson of the USO said that the money would be used to support services the organization provides to U.S. military personnel around the world, such as internet stations from which they can contact families and friends back home.

Fuel Station

Council authorized City Manager Michael McLaughlin to sign contracts with the Maryland Energy Administration (MEA) for a compressed natural gas (CNG) fast-fill pump to be installed at the public works facility. Residents with CNG vehicles will be able to use this pump, although initially only during normal Public Works working hours. After the Public Works renovation is completed, a system allowing 24-hour access will be available. MEA will reimburse the city for cost of the pump. The city must provide the estimated $20,000 installation cost.

Legislation

Revisions to the city's capital improvements budget were introduced for first reading. A public hearing will be held on the issue at the July 14 regular meeting. The ordinance would increase the projected expenditures from the $1.3 million in the adopted budget to $2.2 million. Major increases are: $75,000 for a new animal control facility; $96,000 for the CNG fast-fill appliance ($76,000 of which will be offset by the state grant); a $66,000 increase in the amount budgeted for repairing windows in the Community Center; $23,000 more for Community Center facility needs; $5,000 for the Greenbrook Trail bridge; $640,000 for land acquisition (completely offset with grant funds); and $75,000 for repairs to the Braden Field tennis courts.

Two items have been deleted: $20,000 for traffic calming and $46,800 for playground improvements. Mayor Judith Davis noted that council has scheduled a worksession on playground policy beginning a process to better identify what playground improvements are needed.

An ordinance establishing a reserve fund for future building improvements was adopted. Councilmember Thomas White expressed disappointment at the "woefully inadequate" appropriation ($50,000) for fiscal year 2004 (which began July 1).

Davis and Councilmember Alan Turnbull asked for staff to put together some type of estimate of the expected cost and time frame for major building improvements for consideration during next year's budget process. McLaughlin said that the staff already has a list of anticipated needs, such as new roofs, that are reviewed each year. However, this list does not include cost information. McLaughlin doubted that he could provide a projected cost schedule for next year's budget process.

An ordinance implementing the new pool fees approved during the budget process was approved, as was an ordinance adjusting the appropriations for Fiscal Year 2003, which was ending at midnight that night. This process ensures that all city expenditures for the fiscal year fall within appropriations authorized by council.

Boards and Committees

Council:

- Accepted Advisory Planning Board Report 03-02 for consideration at a future council meeting. The report recommends that council recommend approval of the detailed site plan for the six-story, 155-unit Hilton Garden Inn to be built on the Golden Triangle if the developer agrees to make several improvements and to submit sign and lighting plans for city review. The Golden Triangle is the commercial development adjacent to Greenbelt Road and Kenilworth Avenue opposite the entrance to Greenbelt Park.
- Approved a staff recommendation to extend the deadline for studying measures taken to address resident concerns about the basketball court in Windsor Green. Usage of this court was significantly reduced by the frequent spring rains, making meaningful analysis impossible.
- Accepted the Youth Advisory Committee's report on the Youth Forum held June 24. Roughly 40 citizens, albeit more adults than youths, attended and shared ideas and interests with council. Another forum is planned for next spring.
- Accepted the resignation of Carol Malveaux from the Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB), reappointed Kilolo Ajanaku to the Youth Advisory Committee and appointed Barbara Foreman to the Public Safety Advisory Committee and Derrick Lee to PRAB.

Greenbelt Day Festival: A Fun-Filled Family Affair

GHI Hosts House And Garden Tour

by Agnes Conaty

Luckily the rain held off on Sunday, June 8 and the Home & Garden Tour hosted by Greenbelt Homes, Inc. was one of the successful Greenbelt Day weekend activities. Organized by the Member & Community Relations Committee, the tour was held between 12:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Prospective GHI home buyers or simply curious Greenbelters made the rounds to 10 GHI owners who showcased their homes or gardens.

Among the hosts of the tour were Geri Briggs and Greg Johnson of Crescent; Barbara Logan, Annie Bush, Alan Smith and Michael Giles of Ridge; Don Dorsey of Woodland Way; Karan Temple True of Hillside and Jackie Magness of Laurel Hill.

The tour featured innovative home and garden improvements done by these home owners and highlighted the friendly and open neighborhood of Old Greenbelt.

Fun and Edible Art for All Ages

Artist Tom Baker facilitated an event which attracted creative minds of all ages. "The Banquet of the Sculptures" workshop equipped participants with fruits and vegetables that were then crafted into sculptures of many shapes and sizes. Some were whimsical, some were functional, some were absurd. They all had one thing in common – at the end of the day they tasted good, too!

A Spontaneously Fishy Story

by R. B. Aluch

I remember, it was maybe 20 years ago, a strange thing happened to me. I had been climbing on a rock, down by a creek, when I looked closely at the water and saw myself and behind my reflection was a fish face staring straight back at me. I thought it was funny that the fish was staring at me and hadn't swam away. I think the fish wanted something from me or to give something to me. I don't know for sure. I know it sounds crazy, but I've heard of stranger things. How could I figure out what he wanted? I reached down to the water and scooped him up and he seemed to jump right into my hand. This was getting really weird now. But I might as well throw reason to the wind and ignore reality. It couldn't really be that a fish wants something of me, could it? Anyway, as I brought him closer to my face, the fish seemed to motion with his fin, seemingly pointing at my nose. What's wrong with my nose, I wondered. What's wrong with my mind is the question I probably should have asked. I listened closely and thought I heard a gurgling sound, a fish trying to talk? Not possible, is it? And I thought I heard these words in gurgling fish language. "If I had your face, I believe I would stay away from reflecting ponds." Insulting little fish, I thought, and gave him a fling and back into the water he went. I never cared much for fish, but there's one I just might consider grilling.

Sunday afternoon's spontaneous writing venture at Greenbelt Day produced this story, voted the best effort by Aluch's peers.
